Funding Guidance for Employers

The information and weblinks in this document are correct at the time of publication. The area of funding is changing constantly and this document will be updated on a regular basis. Whilst Skills for Health works hard to ensure accuracy, it does not claim any responsibility for contents and workings of other websites. November 2011.
Introduction

Funding is a complex and rapidly changing arena so it is important to keep abreast of developments. This guide details a range of ways of funding staff learning and development for healthcare employers and you will find sources of information and services to help you explore what is available.

You may find it helpful to read this document in conjunction with the Staff Learning and Development Funding Guidance for Individuals.

For example, careers services can be useful resources of help and information to employers and details of the key services across the UK can be found in that guide.

It is good practice for organisational business plans to be underpinned by workforce plans and training needs analyses, supported by a personal development review process for staff. Recruiting and retaining staff in the healthcare sector has its own unique challenges as employers respond to national and local priorities and the changing requirements of service delivery.

There are two key challenges for the health sector:

- Shortage of people with the right skills, particularly those required in an increasingly technological workplace; and
- Shortage of skilled people at a local level. Recruiting a workforce that reflects the local population is a key priority for the NHS and other health organisations as part of effective workforce planning.
This guide highlights potential funding sources linked with initiatives to support recruitment and retention within the health sector and is intended to be used by public, independent and third sector organisations. It provides information on:

Skills Initiatives:
- Pre-employment and vocational training schemes
- Widening Access and Participation
- Apprenticeships
- NHS bursaries
- Graduate recruitment schemes / internships

Funding by country:
- Funding provision in the UK, England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland

Other sources of help:
- Specific help for the Business / Independent and the Third Sectors and for individuals as Employers.

As the area of funding is changing constantly and is key to supporting employers in developing the required workforce skill profile, this guide will be updated on a regular basis.

If you have any comments on this guide or additional information you would like to see included, please send your feedback by email to office@skillsforhealth.org.uk marked ‘Funding Guide for Employers’.
Skills Initiatives

Each country in the UK sees that a high level of skills leads to both economic competitiveness and prosperity.

Skills for Sustainable Growth sets out the coalition government’s vision for the reform of the further education and skills system in order to improve the skills of the workforce. This has been followed by a review of vocational education as set out by the Wolf Report.

Northern Ireland had discussions leading to ‘Success through Skills 2’ which was consulted on until September 2010, leading on from ‘Preparing for Success’ (Jan. 2009). It is the overarching strategy for skills in Northern Ireland.

The Scottish government consulted on Skills for Scotland: A Lifelong Skills Strategy, following it up with Skills for Scotland: Accelerating Recovery and Sustainable Economic Growth which makes clear the Scottish Government’s commitment to training and skills and sets out a flexible, responsive, partnership approach to meeting Scotland’s skills needs.

Skills that Work for Wales is the skills and employment strategy for Wales, together with an action plan.

Like other industries, health needs people with the right skills and qualifications. There are a range of qualifications that are appropriate to the health sector from university level to work based qualifications. Allied to the qualifications, employability skills are key.

More recent introductions include the English baccalaureate which has been introduced though those studying GCSEs. The Qualifications and Credit Framework (QCF) groups together vocational qualifications at different levels and is appropriate for England, Wales and Northern Ireland. Scotland’s qualifications can be found on the Scottish Credit and Qualification Framework (SCQF).

Vocational options such as a BTEC award or Diploma, such as the Society Health and Development Diploma are available. In Wales, the Welsh Baccalaureate Qualification (WBQ) combines personal development with existing qualifications such as A levels and QCF qualifications which gives a wider breadth of experience and can be studied in English, Welsh or a combination of both.

Apprenticeships can go some way to meeting the needs of the workforce.

See Direct Gov for an explanation of qualifications.

SCQF for information on Scottish qualifications.

Employees have the right to request “time to train” in businesses in England, Scotland and Wales employing 250 or more people.
Pre-employment and vocational training schemes

There is a variety of schemes supporting young people and adults into work through a combination of vocational training and work experience, e.g. in England, for 14-19 year olds and Adult Learning and Skills, as well as a range of programmes and services offered by JobCentre Plus.

The coalition government, in its The Plan for Growth, has placed significant emphasis on work experience placements for 16-19 year olds. See also the Skills for Health website for information on work experience in the health sector.

These schemes rely heavily on partnerships working at a local and/or regional level, and they enable an effective pooling of resources. For example, a healthcare employer might contribute by making work experience available and then benefit themselves from the training being funded by another stakeholder. Stakeholders may include:

- Government (Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland)
- Regional Development Agencies (England). The government has confirmed its intention to abolish the RDAs by March 2012 and replace them with Local Enterprise Partnerships (LEPs)
- Skills Funding Agency
- Young Person’s Learning Agency
- Strategic Health Authorities or Health Boards
- Local Authorities
- Learning Providers
- Jobcentre Plus (England, Scotland and Wales)
- Third sector (voluntary / community / social enterprise) organisations

Health sector pre-employment programmes can support recruitment into entry level positions. For information on the sector employability toolkit and the Health sector pre-employment programme, see Skills for Health.

For more information on career pathways into employment in the healthcare sector, take a look at the Skills for Health careers information and advice pages.

Widening Access and Participation

Widening access to a career in health embraces a range of activities that aim to:

- Raise aspirations among young people and adults
- Promote health professions and health sector careers
- Promote both traditional and non-traditional routes into a career in healthcare

It is often seen as important that healthcare organisations are representative of their local communities and activities with local partners can be an important element of widening participation. This can range from employer engagement to promote careers in health and recruiting apprentices to working with Jobcentre Plus on pre-employment schemes.

England

Universities are being encouraged by the government to improve access from under represented groups.

HEFCE state that widening participation is a crucial part of their mission.

Lifelong Learning Networks (LLNs) have a website aimed at those practitioners working in partnership to support vocational progression and the development and delivery of higher level skills. Some regional activity has now ceased, but there is some ongoing activity where funding has continued.

For more information: Lifelong Learning Networks.
Wales

The Reaching Wider Initiative is co-ordinated by four partnerships in North Wales, West and Mid Wales, South West Wales and South East Wales and was established by the Higher Education Funding Council for Wales (HEFCW). Activities are supported by:

- HEFCW
- All higher and further education institutions
- Local authorities
- Schools
- Voluntary organisations
- The Open University
- Careers Wales

Activities may include summer schools as well as fast track courses for healthcare assistants and cadetships.

For further information: Reaching Wider Initiative

Scotland

Skills Development Scotland supports decision making on learning and work.

Diverse Routes may be of interest to those considering going to university in Scotland

Scottish Wider Access Programme - gives independent advice to those adults wanting to enter higher education in Scotland.

Northern Ireland

Widening access and participation activity has two strands:

1. Widening participation in Higher Education is a key priority for the Department for Employment and Learning in Northern Ireland (DELNI).
2. The Widening Participation Unit (within the Beeches Management Centre) works to support widening access to health and social care careers through pre-employment activities and activities that support career pathways and progression for staff. Regional activity is supported by:

   - Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety (DHSSPS)
   - Health and Social Care Trusts
   - The Beeches Management Centre
   - Educational Guidance Service for Adults (EGSA)
Apprenticeships

Apprenticeships enable health sector employers to develop individuals with the skills that they need. Apprenticeships are available across a wide range of disciplines and can be specifically health and social care related or in other occupational categories such as engineering or administration (for further information see Types of Apprenticeships). There is significant emphasis on Apprenticeships by the four governments across the UK although there are variations how apprenticeships are organised and funded in each country. The coalition government has placed more importance on apprenticeships and is committed to creating an additional 250,000 new apprenticeships by May 2015.

Whilst a contribution to the costs of training by employers is usually required for those aged 19+, e.g. the Skills Funding Agency co-funds up to 50%, depending upon age, 100% funding for training is usually attributed to apprentices aged 16-18, and is made available by the governments in each country. In England, the National Apprenticeship Service has the overall responsibility for delivering Apprenticeships, including the co-ordination of funding - for further information, see Apprenticeships Training and Funding.

In Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland, funding is made available through the devolved governments in these countries - see further the relevant country specific funding section of this document and the links below.

Traditionally, apprenticeships have not always been seen as a route into the healthcare sector. In 2009/10 the Department of Health supported increased investment to secure over 8,000 new apprenticeships in the health sector, 50% of which were new entrants to the workforce.

There are many different Apprenticeships, at different levels, that are appropriate to over 100 different jobs within the UK health sector. Apprenticeship resources to support employers, learning providers and learners have been developed. General information on apprenticeships can also be found on NHS Careers.

For a report on the net benefit to employers of investment in Apprenticeships (IER), see the Apprenticeship Ambassador Network website.

NHS bursaries

NHS bursaries support those who might otherwise face financial barriers to developing a career in a health profession. Across the UK there are variations in which specific health professions training may attract a bursary payment. This reflects the differing recruitment priorities of each country. As a health sector employer, whilst NHS bursaries cannot be used to support employees on a secondment, they are open to anyone else, both those currently employed and prospective employees.

• Do your employees know about these bursaries?
• Do you promote them as part of your overall recruitment and marketing strategy?

For further information, see the Bursaries, scholarships and awards section of the Staff Learning and Development Funding Guidance for Individuals

Graduate recruitment schemes / Internships

The NHS and some larger independent healthcare providers fund recruitment schemes that aim to attract high calibre graduates, mainly into management roles. Schemes such as these are another excellent way for health sector employers to attract the staff they need with the skills they need. Places are very limited so organisations need to make the most of any opportunities they have to benefit from them.

Funding by Country

UK wide funding

Local learning providers

What are they?

They are further or adult education providers and private training providers. Their activities are funded by the Skills Funding Agency in England, by the Scottish Funding Council (SFC) and by devolved governments in other parts of the UK. They are a key way of indirectly accessing a range of funded or part-funded provision. This could include provision inside and outside the workplace. Learning providers are increasingly able to offer flexible training solutions around the needs of employers.

What can you use the investment for?

Funding reflects current national priorities and so is subject to change. For up to date information, use the links in this section to find your local learning provider. If you would like more information on learning, courses and how to find good quality learning providers see the Skills for Health careers information and advice pages. You could also contact your local Skills Funding Agency, the Scottish Funding Council (SFC), or the relevant department in the other devolved administrations. See below for useful links.

How can you access this source of funding?

Developing strong partnerships with your local learning provider(s) has the potential to open up a range of funding which they can access to support your training requirements. This may, for example, mean full or part funding for qualifications such as the Qualifications Credit Framework (QCF) or Scottish vocational qualifications (SVQ). Putting in place a service level agreement will ensure you both understand each other’s expectations and limitations.

Locating a learning provider

European and Regional funding

What is it?

External sources of funding at European and regional levels generally focus on economic and social priorities such as regeneration, employment and workforce development. The European Social Fund (ESF) is one of the EU Structural Funds and aims to improve employment opportunities across the EU through developing skills and job opportunities. The European Regional Development Fund is the other main EU Structure Fund.

ESF is distributed through Co-financing Organisations (CFOs) which are public bodies which bring together ESF and domestic funding to develop employment and skills programmes and initiatives. In England, CFOs include the Skills Funding Agency, Department of Work and Pensions (DWP), Jobcentre Plus, Regional Development Agencies (RDAs) and some local authorities. The devolved administrations in Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland have separate arrangements for distributing development funds.

How can you access this funding?

Working in partnership is an important way to make a successful bid for these types of funding, most of which is accessed via organisations such as the Skills Funding Agency, Jobcentre Plus or local authorities. In Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland, the devolved administrations are key links. If you want to find out more here are some suggestions:

- Networking Use the links in this guide to find out where your local and regional economic, business and skills networking takes place. Joining these networks will help you to be more aware of what funding is being made available. As funding is usually awarded through a competitive tendering process, the sooner your organisation knows what is available, the better. Networking may also lead to successful joint tendering.

- Improved monitoring and data collection. ESF and regional development funding will involve a high degree of monitoring and performance expectations. It may also require match funding by your organisation, so make sure you explore what is involved before choosing this funding route.

See the relevant country specific funding section of this document for further information.
Union Learning Fund (ULF)

What is it?
There are Union Learning Funds across the UK which aim to help unions increase and embed learning activity more widely in the workplace.

What can you use the investment for?
Funds may be used to support union projects and can range from recruiting and training Union Learning Representatives (ULRs) to developing union capacity to engage in effective partnership working with employers and other partners. Emphasis is on projects that will help to sustain learning activity in the long term.

How can you access this funding?
See the relevant country specific funding section of this document.
Public and Union Funding in England

Funding Bodies

Strategic Health Authorities (SHAs)
There are 10 SHAs in England and their role is to develop plans for health services in their areas, ensure national priorities are integrated within service plans and that delivery capacity and quality are developed. SHAs manage the Multi-Professional Education and Training budget (MPET) which covers a range of education and training costs, pre-registration healthcare profession training (including secondments) and post-graduate medical education.

In January 2010, the Department of Health published Education Commissioning for Health, an on-line resource setting out a complete commissioning system for the use of the Multi-Professional Education and Training levy (MPET). A consultation on the new framework for developing the healthcare workforce concluded on 31 March 2011. The outcome from this consultation is awaited.

To find your local Strategic Health Authority refer to the NHS Choices website: Strategic Health Authority Listing

The white paper - Equity and Excellence - Liberating the NHS – published in July 2010 put patients at the heart of everything the NHS does. The subsequent Health and Social Care Bill is currently going through Parliament. Included in these plans is the phasing out of Strategic Health Authorities and Primary Care Trusts. The SHAs have been grouped into four clusters from October 2011.

Skills Funding Agency (SFA)
The Skills Funding Agency (http://skillsfundingagency.bis.gov.uk) is the funding agency and regulator for adult skills (excluding higher education), providing funding to FE colleges and other training providers, and the Young People’s Learning Agency (http://www.ypla.gov.uk) supports education and training for young people (16-19), including assisting local authorities in commissioning provision. The new 16-19 bursary fund will help young people continue in education, who might otherwise struggle for financial reasons. Subject to legislation, the YPLA will become the Education Funding Agency in April 2012.

The Skills Funding Agency supports employers in the following areas:
- Apprenticeships
- Growth and Innovation Fund (four strands: Joint Investment Programme; National Skills Academies; Leadership and Management; Best Market Solution)

The Skills Funding Agency is also responsible for the new adult careers service - Next Step which brings together a service for adults offering web based information on a wide range of careers information including courses and Government funding. In addition, it offers telephone advice or the opportunity to meet face to face. Next Step now incorporates Lifelong Learning accounts where you can register or maintain your original registration and store information on such as skills and achievements as well as finding out about financial support.

Skills for Health and NHS Careers work with Next Step to provide the Health Learning and Skills Advice Line. This service provides careers information and advice for those considering a career in health or already working in the sector, including information on funding. You can contact them on 08000 150 850.

Jobcentre Plus (JCP)

What are they?
Jobcentre Plus is an executive agency of the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) and provides a range of services to both individuals of working age (supporting them from welfare into work) and employers (helping them to fill vacancies) both directly and in partnership with other employers.

Information on Jobcentre Plus is available from three websites:
- For Individuals
- For Employers
- For Partners
How can you access services?

A number of services are available to help employers overcome obstacles associated with recruiting staff. These include:

- Advertising on line with Jobcentre Plus - Employer Direct on-line
- Support in recruiting - Using Jobcentre Plus services to fill your job. A range of Programmes and services available to job seekers, providing them with skills to enter the job market.
- Support in recruiting for small businesses - employer services

You may also be interested in other Jobcentre Plus initiatives.

By working with Jobcentre Plus, employers can tackle the increasing recruitment and skills challenges of the labour market and economy. Employers can work with Jobcentre Plus to open opportunities for people who, for whatever reason, have not yet been able to take advantage of the employment opportunities that are out there.

Recruiting and retaining disabled people. There is a range of services to employers to recruit and retain people with disabilities and to assist those with disabilities to return and remain in work.

For employers looking to employ young people, the coalition government suggests the following options:

- Apprenticeships
- Employing young people or
- Providing experience of work through a graduate internship or a work placement scheme. See the Skills for Health website Work Experience in the Health Sector

Funding Initiatives

It is recognised that training for staff across the health sector is important to ensure that patient care is of the highest standard. Those who have professional qualifications are obliged to maintain their standards and registration by undertaking continual professional development (CPD)

It is equally important that healthcare staff on levels 1 to 4 of the Career Framework for Health have access to appropriate training.

Different regions, localities and organisations will have different priorities so there will be variations across the country. Limited funding exists to support various activities including apprenticeships and literacy, language and numeracy skills.

In some regions there are funding opportunities through funding streams such as the European Social Fund (ESF), the Union learning fund, Jobcentre Plus and through local partnerships. Partnerships between local authorities and businesses have been set up to form Local Enterprise Partnerships to determine local economic priorities. The Strategic Health Authorities and the Skills Funding Agency may also be able to advise.

Health care reforms present a period of uncertainty for many organisations. The National Council for Voluntary Organisations has produced a new area on its website - ‘Planning for Change - sustainable funding in times of uncertainty’ where you will find some information and guidance that may help with planning for the future by taking action to obtain sustainable funding. This is aimed at the voluntary and community sectors, but may also be useful to the wider sector.
Publicly funded support

Skills for Sustainable Growth advised that from August 2011, publicly funded support would be available to provide:

- Apprenticeships
- Leadership and management programmes
- Training for those made redundant
- National Skills Academies

Growth and Innovation Fund (GIF)

GIF has four strands:

- Joint Investment Programme - is aimed at bringing together public and private funding for investment in skills to deliver productivity and growth or to address market failure in delivering vocational training in a particular sector;
- National Skills Academies - expressions of interest are being sought for up to four new National Skills Academies;
- Leadership and Management – is targeted at high and fast growth businesses with less than 250 employees; and
- Best Market Solutions - has been established to support skills development to drive growth and create jobs. For further information, go to the UKCES website.

Additional Links

Online funding directories and guides can help. Some are free, others require a subscription. Where there is a fee, you can sometimes take advantage of a free trial period. It is possible to access some through local libraries or other local information points.

You will also find some links which focus on funding for particular types of organisation, such as those with charitable or voluntary status. Health sector organisations within this category (for example, hospices) may find these links particularly applicable. Voluntary activity within publicly funded healthcare may also be eligible to access these funding sources.
